

Crystal Quick Reference

Agate - Persian

Persian Agate is actually a form of Chalcedony so it will have all the properties of Chalcedony.

Persian Agate is identified by its bands and patterns of colors. Browns, reds, yellows, oranges, blues, and more colors can be present. The colors are caused by different minerals being present during formation.

Persian agate, on the other hand, is primarily found in Iran.

Persian Agate looks very similar to Botswana Agate which is only found in Botswana Africa.

This crystal is excellent for grounding. It helps to restore and maintain balance. It is also a powerful crystal for establishing and maintaining stability. This crystal is very helpful during times of stress and disharmony, chaos in your life or environment.

The ability of this crystal to provide stability will help to increase inner strength, quieten feelings of anger and resentment. It also helps to deal with emotional trauma by providing stability and strength.

It is said that this crystal helps with circulation related issues as well as vitality.

This crystal also is wonderful to expanding awareness, increasing psychic abilities, enhancing intuition, and cultivating wisdom. It helps to connect with higher realms of consciousness.

Chakras: All