Ametrine

Ametrine is a mix of amethyst and citrine. It has properties of both plus some special qualities.

True ametrine ONLY comes from the Anahi mine which is on the border of Bolivia and Brazil. This area is held by drug lords and the Anahi mine is closed. However, in 2013 (?) a deal was struck between a well known gem mine owner and the drug lords that allowed him and two other people to enter the mine and bring back a duffel bag each. A small quantity of new Ametrine is available.

Beware of cheap imitations, dyed crystals and artificially produced knock offs.
